

St. Francis is going to Asian International Model United Nations Conference

St. Francis sent a team of 3 students to represent the school in the Asian International Model United Nations Conference (AIMUN).

An event that provides an opportune platform for cultural exchange, the participants were engaged in discussions of a myriad of current affairs which span from political to environmental concerns, through role playing as diplomats of a given nation.

St. Francis has the honour of being one of the non-university institutions to represent Singapore alongside with National University of Singapore and Singapore Management University at AIMUN.

Representing the school for this prestigious event are Wang Chuqiao Jowill of PU2A, Balraj Kaur of PU1F and Gasper William Thompson of PU1A.

Role playing as the diplomats of the Solomon Islands, the team represented the nation on a variety of issues such as banking and loan matters, environmental development and international terrorism.

Accompanied by Ms Sarah Chong, the academic registrar, the team left for Beijing on the 10th of March.

Jowill Wang is awarded the Certificate of Achievement in recognition for his outstanding presentation at the conference.

Representatives from the Corporate Office of St. Francis, Mr. Andrew Ponniah and Ms. Wah Suying, were interviewed by a reporter from QQ.com during the Guangzhou Education fair.

Published on QQ.com 17th March 2009, the interview on the uniqueness of a 360 degree education of St. Francis is a boon to us as QQ.com is one of the most popular and widely used search engines. Calls and emails from interested applicants who came to know about us via the website were aplenty. St. Francis is definitely making her presence felt in the Chinese market.
